The first-ever China-US Entrepreneur and Investment Summit held by People's Daily Online, themed on "Smart Interconnection, Innovative Future," kicked off on Saturday in Silicon Valley, California, United States. Focusing on the present and future of Chinese and American innovation and venture capital, the summit aims to provide a platform for the two nations' cooperation in science, technology, innovation, and investment.

"The healthy development of China-US relations should be promoted jointly by Chinese and American public. At today's conference, industry representatives from both nations deepened their mutual understanding, which is important for strengthening mutually beneficial cooperation between the two sides," said Luo Linqun, Chinese Consul General in San Francisco, United States.
